FORM + FUNCTION

The latest window and door products marry technology and style

► PIPE DREAM René, a line of door and cabinet hardware by Maison Vervloet, was born when designer Jean-François D'Or noted that his tobacco pipe would make an excellent shape for a door lever. His clean-lined collection is made of solid brass and aluminum; a handle and key escutcheon in a blue anodized-aluminum finish are pictured. vervloet.com

▲ HIGH PERFORMANCE Andersen Windows & Doors recently improved the performance of its A-Series windows—part of the brand's Architectural Collection. The new PG Upgrade option gives the windows a PG70 performance rating, thanks to hidden structural reinforcements that don't affect their aesthetic. andersenwindows.com

▼ DOOR PRIZE The Masonite Performance Door System seals fiberglass exterior doors against water and air with a number of design enhancements: square edges for a seamless fit; a self-adjusting sill that prevents leaks; and weatherstripping and corner pads to fill gaps. Three new Shaker-style panel designs are available. masonite.com
